Education

Cornell University, B.A., 2023; Major in Government and Feminist, Gender,
Sexuality Studies; Dean's List.

Amisha is driven by her passion to learn about complex social problems and seek tangible solutions.

Previously, Amisha interned for the Manhattan District Attorney's Office where she assisted clients at the Victim Assistance Center with case update communication, order of protections, safety planning, and legal rights education. Amisha has special interest in advocating for social justice causes and marginalized communities. She served as a research assistant for Public Benefit Programs Study where she engaged with public benefit recipients to learn about gaps in social welfare programs and propose policy improvements. As a former student organizer, Amisha has also worked extensively to expand resources for first-generation and low-income students at her university.
