Education

University of Pennsylvania, B.A., 2021,
Urban Studies; Minor in Italian. Magna
Cum Laude

Carmina provides both substantive and administrative support to legal teams in a wide range of areas, including commercial, white collar, and civil litigation.

Given her past professional experiences in the education and journalism fields, Carmina understands the importance of approaching cases with a meticulous eye for detail and the value of a strong, persuasive argument. This approach informs her work and guides her in effectively contributing to the successful outcomes of different cases.

Prior to joining the firm, Carmina worked as a researcher and writer at Level All, an education technology startup helping students explore and prepare for postsecondary education and careers, and Research for Action, a non-profit education research organization. She has also interned as an opinion and news writer for The Philadelphia Inquirer and El Vocero de Puerto Rico.
