Eden supports legal teams both substantively and administratively across a wide range of areas, from commercial and civil litigation to high-profile criminal defense.

Driven by curiosity and a passion for problem-solving, Eden fulfills her responsibilities with both efficiency and creativity. Eden previously worked as a clinical extern for the University of Iowa Legal Aid Clinic, where she researched rural access to justice and helped Iowans with felony convictions petition the Governor to have their voting rights restored. Through this experience, she learned the importance of centering your practice around the people you are serving.
