Samantha serves as a liaison between all parties including the court, offering a range of legal support to help move a case forward and obtain successful outcomes.

She conducts legal and factual research, prepares and compiles information for depositions and interviews, and drafts legal documents, including briefs and memorandums. Her experiences as an academic researcher help her to create high-quality work products that benefit lawyers and clients alike.

As a parole applicant advocate, Samantha is passionate about ensuring that legal representation is accessible for all people, especially those from marginalized communities.
