Veronica supports numerous legal teams on a variety of matters, including white collar, civil, and commercial litigation. With her years of research experience, Veronica investigates the facts and aids in the preparation of relevant case materials.

Having extensively studied various literatures and languages, Veronica understands the importance of storytelling and persuasive argument. Through this lens, Veronica aids the legal team in analyzing and communicating each part of a client's story. Motivated by her constant desire to learn, Veronica dedicates herself to each task - be it building a timeline of systematizing discovery - with enthusiasm.

Previously, Veronica worked as a legal assistant at the Delaware County District Attorney's Office where she researched prison reform and aided in implementing new initiatives and diversion programs.
